One by one the moments fall; Some are coming, some are going, Do not strive to grasp them all. One by one thy duties wait thee, Let thy whole strength go to each; Let no future dreams clate thee,

Learn thou first what these can teach.

One by one (bright gifts of Meaven)
Joys are sent thee here below;
Take them readily when given, Ready, too, to let them go.

One by one thy griefs shall meet thee, De not fear an armed band; One will fade as others greet thee, Shadows passing through the land.

Do not look at life's long sorrow, See how small each moment's pain; God will help thee for to-merrow, So each day begin again.

Every hour that fleets so slowly Has its task to do or bear, Luminous the crown, and hely, If thou set each gem with care.

Do not linger with regretting, Or for passing hours despond; Nor the daily toil forgetting, Look too eagerly beyond.

Hours are golden books, God's token, Reaching Heaven, but one by one; Take them lest the chain be broken, Ere the pilgrimage be done.

A VOLUME IN ELEVEN LINES .- "Mary Forrest? thus writes it:

O, Roland Wright,
There is mourning to-night,
In the house down under the hill;
A child is born, and the babe is dead. And the soul of its maiden mother is fled, And white, and cold, and stark, and still, Lie mother and child down under the hill; Gray hairs are tossing to and fro, Swayed by the fitful breath of woe, A curse goes hissing out into he night— Whom is it seeking, Roland V r ght
